

12/29/15	The BunnyRanch bordello in Nevada formed a political group, Hookers for Hillary, to raise money. They have a lot in common: Like Hillary, hookers will change positions anytime if offered enough money.
12/29/15	The South was hit with floods over Christmas. More Tennesseans would have drowned had they not been able to use Dolly Parton as a flotation device.
12/29/15	It's Obama's new domestic anti-terrorism mantra: "If you see something, say something – as long as it cannot, in any way, be interpreted as offensive."
12/29/15	ISIS has been recruiting well, funded by its looted oil wealth. The want ads say: "Must be willing to martyr yourself for jihad and be proficient in Excel spreadsheets."
12/22/15	By keeping our southern borders open and by giving free education, health care, EBT cards and voter fraud protections to illegal immigrants, liberals have assured the USA a future interest in soccer.
12/19/15	The numbers for Dr. Ben Carson, who was leading in many polls just last month, abruptly dropped when he was unable to convince folks he really did try to stab someone.
11/24/15	It was about time Bobby Jindal got out of the GOP race. He was at 2 percent in the polls. When you've been running for a year, and you are tied with reduced-fat milk, it's time to get out.
11/24/15	ISIS, dismissed by Obama as a jayvee team, continues to recruit. On their application, they ask, "Where do you see yourself exploding in four years?"
11/20/15	A study by education expert Sandra Stotsky for Renaissance Learning concluded that average college freshmen now read at about a seventh-grade level. Or, as the Obama education department probably reported it, "Seventh-graders now read at a college level."
11/20/15	Crybullying has replaced rational persuasion. When leftist adults supposedly in charge cower instead, kids take over. It is not much different from parenting.
11/20/15	The Greatest Generation risked death to liberate Europe, but these coddled kids think that if they tweet about something, they deserve congratulations.
11/20/15	Today's college kids think Shariah Law is a daytime reality TV show featuring a no-nonsense lady judge.
11/10/15	As they seek to discredit Republican presidential front-runner Ben Carson, the media's new mantra is "Black Lies Matter." But when it comes to Hillary Clinton's years of documented fabrications, their approach is more like "White Lies Don't Matter."
11/10/15	Nothing concerns liberals more than an educated, resourceful, thoughtful black voter who starts questioning them and why they have a lock on the African American vote. When one leaves the plantation, he must be made an example of so others will fall back in line. It's in the "Plantation Owner's Handbook."

11/10/15	Trump once skimmed the Bible, didn't see his name in it and immediately put the book down.
11/3/15	I suggest a drinking game you could play during a Democratic debate. When a candidate mentions something he or she would give you for free, reach over to the person next to you, take his tequila shot from him and down it.
10/20/15	Just because something is political, it doesn't mean the claims are untrue.
10/20/15	In short, the White House admits mistakes were made but maintains that no one made them.
10/13/15	In reverse Darwinism, smart kids are using birth control, the dumb ones are not.
10/13/15	Cosby continues to get stripped of his honorary degrees, most recently by Brown University, after Marquette and Fordham pulled their degrees. At this rate, pretty soon Cosby will have to repeat junior high school.
10/7/15	And we are starting to learn the essence of the Obama Doctrine: When confronted by a world crisis, raise taxes on Americans, and blame global warming.
9/29/15	Boehner, an historic figure as the first orange speaker of the House, will move on. With all the bronzer he uses, he might be looking to head the Spokane chapter of the NAACP.
9/29/15	My concern is not how to continue to make government work, it's how to make it stop.
9/22/15	In the pope's orthodoxy, sloth, anger, gluttony, greed, envy, pride and lust are the Seven Deadly Sins. In Washington, they're the days of the week.
9/8/15	Nothing grabs our interest more than college football punctuated by commercials featuring cleavage, erectile dysfunction pills and beer.
9/8/15	We Southerners take pride in football like Northerners do in corrupt politicians, high taxes, cold weather, potholes and second-guessing their police.
9/1/15	Joe Biden has been a perpetual punchline for the past seven years. He was put into his role as vice president by President Obama apparently to dispel, forever, the notion of white supremacy.
8/25/15	This parade of characters – Biden, Clinton, Sanders and Trump – is like a government bailout for political humorists.
8/25/15	Obama kowtows to Putin and wears mommy jeans and a Dukakis-style helmet while pedaling his bike on Martha's Vineyard.
8/25/15	If you think unchecked immigration cannot change a nation, ask an American Indian.
8/18/15	If I were Hillary and wanted to hide things on my computer, I would put them in a desktop folder that no one would want to look at. I would label it: "Photos of Hillary doing yoga."
8/11/15	It will be interesting to watch Hillary, who has made over $100 million (as have Al Gore, Harry Reid and similar liberal co-conspirators) through crony capitalism, invoke class warfare and vilify the successful in her quest for coronation as the Democratic presidential nominee.